B. Background

In November 1988, California voters approved the Tobacco Tax and Health Promotion Act of 1988 (Proposition 99) which added a 25 cent tax to each pack of cigarettes sold in the state. These additional tobacco taxes were earmarked for tobacco-related research, health education and promotion, and health care.

The enabling legislation for Proposition 99 includes Assembly Bills (AB) 75, 99, and 3487, and Senate Bills (SB) 99, 816, 493, and the annual State Budget. These bills provide legislative authority for programs administered by the California Department of Health Services, Tobacco Control Section (CDHS/TCS) to:

- conduct health education interventions and behavior change programs at the state level, in the community, and other non-school settings;
- apply the most current research and findings; and
- give priority to programs that demonstrate an understanding of the role community norm change has in influencing behavioral change regarding tobacco use.
